Gustus wins Wilmington but Buell takes district

Wilmington voters turned out in record numbers last night. According to Town Clerk Priscilla Lynch, 83.7 percent or 8,096 of the town's 9,670 registered voters went to the polls to register their selections for President, Congressman, and several state and county offices and their positions on a number of hotly tested referendum questions.

Riding the wave of conservativism that swept Ronald Reagan into the number one office in the land, Proposition 2½ received a resounding majority. Even in Wilmington, where local officials predicted drastic cuts in town and school budgets were it to pass, Proposition 2½ received 63 percent of the vote, winning by nearly a 2-1 margin.

For State Senator Bob Buell and challenger Attorney William Gustus the night was a long one. It was after 2 a.m. when it finally became apparent that Buell had won by about a 10,315 vote plurality.

Gustus won big in the three communities nearest his home town. In Wilmington, he nailed down 78 percent of the vote. In Reading, where he lives, he won 4794 to 2599 or 64 percent of the vote. In North Reading, Gustus took 62 percent of the vote, winning 3341 to 2050.

But the decisive factor for Buell was the 14 Essex County towns along the north shore. Buell told the Town Crier that he had won in these towns by even bigger margins than he had two years ago when he ran against Wilmington Selectman Robert Cain.

"The town I am happiest about is Gloucester," Buell said. He reported winning there by 1,500 votes.

Buell also reported taking Topsfield 2571 to 479; Wenham by 1558 to 277; and his home town of Boxford by 2432 to 334.

Buell, who spent 10 years in the Massachusetts House of Representatives before being elected to the State Senate two years ago, said the figures indicated that what he was doing "must agree with some people."

He said in the coming two years, he plans to spend more time in Wilmington and urged local residents to call him if they have problems they feel he could help them with.

In the race for the 21st Middlesex District, State Representative Michael Barrett nailed down an impressive victory over challenger Michael Crowley. Barrett garnered 11,919 of the 18,043 ballots cast in North Reading, Reading and Wilmington's Precinct 3, a figure that represents 66 percent of the total vote.

Reading, Barrett's home town, was his strongest suit, where he chalked up 8,464 votes to Crowley's 3,201. In North Reading, Crowley's home town, Barrett's win was closer. He received 2,844 votes, while Crowley received 2,544. In Wilmington's Precinct 3, Barrett received 611 votes while Crowley received 379.

In the 20th Middlesex District, State Representative James Miceli, running unopposed, drew 5,737 votes.

In other races, Wilmington voters generally followed statewide trends. They voted 4541 to 2709 to prohibit discrimination against the handicapped (Ballot Question 1.); expressed their resounding disapproval (6682 to 645) of last fall's Halloween legislative pay raises; and voted 5136 to 1998 for incumbent U.S. Congressman James Shannon.

Election lines — Presidential elections often result in lines of voters waiting to get into the polls. Tuesday was no exception, with many voters taking several minutes to make their choices. This scene was in the high school gymnasium shortly after the doors to the polls closed at 8 p.m.

WHA signs application for 774

The Wilmington Housing Authority Monday night signed its application for a comprehensive permit for a controversial housing project. The application goes to the Board of Appeals for action under Chapter 774, the anti - snob zoning law.

A few members of the Concerned Citizens of Wilmington attended the meeting. In spite of having requested time on the agenda, the citizens group was not recognized at the meeting, until Robin Theodos pleaded to have one question answered.

Mrs. Theodos asked why the authority had requested a town meeting while it was still proceeding with the application for the Chapter 774 action.

George Hooper responded that the request for a town meeting was the result of requests by the citizens group.

The authority held an executive session with its accountant, Edward Schwartz, to discuss a recent state auditor's report which found some minor bookkeeping discrepencies. The executive session was called because Schwartz wanted to air some personal conflicts that he has with the senior state auditor.

Schwartz said that his firm serves as accountant for 61 other housing authorities in New England. He said that his fee to the WHA is $660 per year.

The $1000 mathematical error that the state auditor found was in a figure that had not been subjected to accountant's scrutiny. The accountant checks the books monthly, and the error was in figures that came after his monthly visit.

Revaluation ordered by state

Wilmington has received notice that the Massachusetts Department of Revenue will contract for revaluation of the town.

The 1980 annual town meeting was told that the state would require a revaluation. The town meeting, though, turned down an article to appropriate $125,000 to pay for the revaluation.

In a letter to the board of selectmen, dated Oct. 23, Mass. Commissioner of Revenue L. Joyce Hampers gave the town a Nov. 10 deadline to appropriate funds for a revaluation and to contract for the work.

The revaluation is required because of a court decision, known as the Sudbury decision, which requires cities and towns to achieve and maintain full and uniform assessments.

Most Wilmington property is now assessed at approximately 41 percent of market value. The last revaluation of the town was performed in 1966.

If the Department of Revenue proceeds as announced, it will hire a firm to carry out the revaluation of property in Wilmington. The money to pay for the revaluation would be deducted from the "cherry sheet," the town's reimbursements from the state.

Veterans Day parade Tuesday

Wilmington's veterans will be marching on Tuesday. The annual Veterans' Day parade will begin at 10 a.m. on Nov. 11 at the Weinberg lot on Main Street. The parade will proceed to Wilmington Common by way of Main and Church streets.

Units from four veterans organizations will participate, along with the Wilmington High School band and the Wilmington Minutemen. The units will represent the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, the Disabled American Veterans and the Royal Canadian Legion.

Memorial services will take place on the common at 11 a.m.

A group of volunteers has announced its intentions to clear the parade route of litter before the parade. Persons interested in helping may contact Warren Newhouse at 658-4673.

Substitute teachers get pay raise

Substitute teachers in Wilmington were granted a pay raise last week from members of the Wilmington School Committee.

"Wilmington has been having difficulty obtaining substitutes," Superintendent of Schools Dr. Walter Pierce told the committee. "There are days when classes go uncovered in the elementary schools and specialists must be used."

Pierce said that "feedback from former substitutes" identified Wilmington's low per diem rate of $25 as one of the reasons substitutes were so difficult to secure.

"Even Andover is $30 a day," he said.

At Pierce's recommendation, the committee voted to raise the per diem rate to $30 per day with an increase to $35 per day after consecutive days of service.

At the suggestion of School Committeeman Philip Fenton, the committee voted to retain the $25 per diem rate for non-degreed substitutes, such as the teacher trainees who are sometimes used when degreed teachers are unavailable.

Fenton, himself, substitutes occasionally at the Shawsheen School.

"But," he said, "I make more money selling real estate and it's a lot easier."

Pierce said the central office will "try this year to run some statistics to see if this helps us."

The only member to oppose the pay hike was School Committee member Linda McMenimen. McMenimen said she could not vote in favor of the measure because of the change to $35 a day after 10 days of service. Under the former policy substitutes' salaries were raised by $5 a day after 10 days in the same classroom only.

McMenimen dubbed the change "drastic."

"I don't feel it will increase the availability of substitutes, but I do feel that they deserve this type of money." she said.

According to Pierce, $25 a day comes down to $3.50 an hour. "With professional people that rate just isn't holding up," he said.

The change was to go into effect Monday morning.

One-sided whiskers — Christopher Caruso might be too young to shave, but he did have whiskers on Halloween eve. He wouldn't hold still for his mother to draw the whiskers on the right side of his face. He was at the Horribles Parade with his mother, Mrs. Jane Caruso. His brother Nicholas also took part in the parade.

Kenneth Sullivan completed Naval training

Navy Construction Recruit Kenneth E. Sullivan, son of Jeannette B. and John F. Sullivan Sr., 1009 Livingston St., Tewksbury has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on the job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in physical education and hygiene.

A graduate of Shawsheen Technical High School, he joined the Navy in September 1979.

Karen Smith and Scott Laing are wed

Karen Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Smith of Tewksbury became the bride of G. Scott Laing on September 20. The 11 a.m. ceremony was performed at the Congregational Church in Wilmington by the Rev. Myers and Father Leo Smith, a family priest who came to Michigan to take part in the service.

Sheila Smith served as maid of honor while the bride's attendant was Gay Rinker. Geoffry Laing served his brother as best man and ushering duties were in charge of David Goodwin Jr.

The new Mrs. Laing is employed with Wang Labs in Lawrence. Her husband, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Laing of West Newbury is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts and is currently employed with a Wilmington based appraisal firm, Magee and Morgan.

Roger Vance at Chanute

Airman Roger S. Vance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Vance of Tewksbury, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs, and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in Applied Science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

SMOKING AND MOUTH PROBLEMS
What does smoking have to do with teeth? Plenty! Smoking effects your whole mouth.
Smokers have more periodontal (gum) disease than non - smokers. Periodontal disease is the largest cause of adult tooth loss. Smoking can delay healing in your mouth, it is a cause of bad breath. Smoking stains your teeth, making them yellow or brown. Irritants and tobacco smoke attack your taste buds, thus preventing you from fully enjoying foods.
Perhaps the most devastating danger of smoking is oral cancer. Smokers have a four times greater risk of oral cancer than non - smokers. Last year oral cancer struck more than 24,000 people; 8,000 of who died from it.
You can help prevent almost all of these problems if you don't smoke. The next time you think about lighting up, stop and remember the harmful effects smoking causes in your mouth. For your health's sake - and the comfort of others - don't smoke.

Deadly virus hitting local dogs

by Elaine DePasquale

There's a killer on the loose in Wilmington, Tewksbury and other Merrimack Valley towns. It's called Parvovirus Diarrhea and it specializes in dogs.

Local veterinarians have identified 21 cases of the disease in the past three months. Six of the affected dogs have died.

In Billerica, over 50 cases have been treated in recent months, according to a Winchester Star news article. Only one of two have survived, the Star said.

A mutation of the feline distemper virus found in cats, Parvovirus is suspected to have adapted itself to dogs from raccoons and skunks. Once a dog contracts the disease, from fleas, human contact or stools of other dogs, it is often fatal.

Symptoms include severe vomiting, diarrhea often streaked with blood and sometimes fever. In puppies, the virus attacks the heart muscle and entire litters can die within hours of the onset of symptoms.

The virus made its first appearance in this country in California about two years ago. It was seen on the east coast as early as last fall and has since rapidly spread throughout New England, causing numerous deaths and the closing of several Massachusetts kennels.

The Angel Memorial Hospital in Boston closed its doors about two months ago. As recently as last week the towns of North Reading and Saugus were forced to shut down their kennels until the virus runs its course.

Treatment is mainly supportive, with antibiotics and intravenous fluids, but the best cure is prevention. A Parvovirus vaccine, once in short supply in the area, is now plentiful and readily available. Two injections are given two weeks apart that result in an immunity from the disease for about a year. In Wilmington and Tewksbury, the shots cost $11 to $12 each.

"I don't care if it costs $40," said Wilmington resident Jean Waugh. "I paid over $250 and I didn't get a dog back."

Waugh said she thought her St. Bernard Brandy had a cold two weeks ago. Being the weekend, she gave him an aspirin and waited. Twenty-four hours later she found him lying half in and half out of a nearby swamp and rushed him to her veterinarian. A week later he was dead, a Parvovirus victim.

"He was coming along fine in the hospital," said Waugh, "then he had a relapse."

Brandy fought off the disease longer than many dogs do. In many cases, death comes after only a few days because of the dehydration the disease causes.

"I cried for two days," said Waugh. "He was gorgeous. What a waste of a dog."

Dr. Lawrence Richard of the Silver Lake Veterinary Clinic has been calling clients to warn them of the danger of the disease. He estimates that he has vaccinated nearly 300 dogs aganst Parvo. He has treated three cases and lost one dog.

Dogs of all ages are susceptible to the disease, Richard says, but for the very young and the very old it is more likely to be fatal because they have "less ability to fight off stresses."

Dr. Kim Moon of the Tewksbury Animal Hospital reports that he is vaccinating 20 to 30 dogs a day. "The problem is the disease works so fast that sometimes people bring their dogs in who already have symptoms and it's too advanced for us to cure," he said.

Moon has treated 12 suspected cases, two of which have died.

Dr. Richard Hahn of the Wilmington Veterinary Clinic says he has seen six cases of the disease in six weeks. Three of these were fatal. But Hahn cautions that symptoms may not always mean Parvovirus.

"The diagnosis is not always easy with it," he said. Other canine diseases which have symptoms similar to Parvo include distemper, parasites, poisoning, and liver or kidney failure. Only a veterinarian can tell for sure and then positive identification often requires a laboratory test.

In Wilmington, Dog Officer Joseph Balestrieri says he has seen no Parvovirus symptoms in any of the 15 to 20 dogs that he usually has waiting for adoption in his North Wilmington pound.

He said, however, he has heard of cases in town and has received a letter from County Dog Officer Thomas Corkery warning him about the disease and suggesting he look into the possibility of the town's setting up a clinic to vaccinate against it.

Balestrieri says he plans to discuss the matter with Board of Health Director Ernest Romano.

"I don't know how far this will go," he said. Owners, said Balestrieri, are primarily the ones responsible for seeing their pets are vaccinated.

In Tewksbury, Dog Officer William Butt reports no intestinal problems with the four dogs in his pound. "We are hoping to find homes for them. They can be destroyed at any time," he said.

Dr. Richard says the new and deadly Parvovirus is "one of those things you can't explain." "It just sort of happened," he said.

Currently a modification of the feline distemper vaccine is being used, with no ill effects, to vaccinate dogs against Parvo. Its effectiveness is still being documented. "The problem with this whole thing," said Richard, "is that it hasn't been around long enough to be continuously evaluated."

Eventually, he said, the vaccine will be incorporated into the distemper inoculations now being given dogs yearly.

"For heaven's sake, if you love your animal take him and get that shot," said Waugh. "I want people to know Parvovirus is not in California. . .it's not in New York. . .it's not in Michigan. . .it's here!"

Who will pay for covering arsenic pit?

Will the arsenic pit be covered before winter? The arsenic pit, of course, is that which was discovered 15 months ago in North Woburn. There have been differences of opinion as to how to accomplish the task of covering that pit.

US District Court Judge John J. McNaught last week ordered a prompt hearing before a federal magistrate to determine if the owner, the Mark-Philip Trust, can afford to pay to cover the pit. Judge McNaught observed that if the Mark Philip Trust cannot pay for it, the work of covering the pit will have to be done by the US Army Corps of Engineers.

The Mark Philip Trust is owned by William D'Annolfo, who has been instrumental in developing many acres of industrial land in North Woburn. Much of the land was abandoned sandpits, and was also land of the former Merrimack Chemical Company, near the Wilmington line. It was there that pits of arsenic and chromium were discovered, along with other chemicals and buried hides.

A federal consent decree, signed last May, was the basis of the action of the Corps of Engineers. The Corps seeks a contempt of court decree against the trust and D'Annolfo.

Attorney Roger Davis told the court that delay in the signing of another consent decree, by the state, had cost the developer over $2 million in sales and financing.

Assistant US Attorney Charles Mone argued that the defendant had not provided adequate reasons to the Corps of Engineers, for failure to comply. The judge asked if the Corps of Engineers would accept D'Annolfo's inability to pay, as reasonable grounds for not covering the arsenic pit, and not complying with the consent decree.

Mone told the court that he would accept the developer's inability to pay if all financial records for the past two years, including the federal income tax returns were turned over to the Corps of Engineers. The Corps, he said, wants the financial records so that it can determine the company's ability to pay.

Davis, representing D'Annolfo, asked that the determination be made by a federal judge. This, he said, would save time in the event there was a disagreement with the records of his client. Judge McNaught agreed with the request of Davis, and ordered that the case be transferred to a federal magistrate as quickly as possible.

The judge said that the work of covering the arsenic pit should be done as quickly as possible, to protect the public, and before the winter weather sets in, making work impossible.

The hearing last week was on the request of the Army Corps of Engineers. They alleged that D'Annolfo had failed to pay a $4500 fine, and had failed to begin work on the arsenic pit, as was required in the consent decree signed last May.

Mone requested that D'Annolfo be required to pay the fine within 10 days, to submit a plan for covering the pit within five days, and begin the work within 10 days after the plan had been approved by the Corps of Engineers.

US Attorney Mone told the judge, when asked, that a $30,000 to $40,000 ruberized plastic liner would be considered adequate, to cover the pit. Other covers, he also said, might be suitable.

The US Attorney's estimates were higher in cost than those made by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE). DEQE has plans to cover the arsenic pit with a $5,000 latex sealer, if D'Annolfo does not act quickly. DEQE officials were reported by the Woburn Times to have said their latex covering was not waterproof, and was only a "temporary measure."

The DEQE proposal to cover the arsenic pit with latex was described in an October 23 meeting of the inter-town Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) chaired by Wilmington Selectman Robert Cain.

Richard Chalpin, of the Boston office of DEQE was present to discuss the proposal of covering the arsenic pit with a layer of latex. He also discussed a proposal by the D'Annolfo interests to cover the arsenic pit with a 4 mil plastic cover.

Cain used the term "glad bag" in discussing the proposed 4 mil cover. He wants something like 10 mils. 4 mils is the "weight of the plastic used in trash bags for homeowners.

Cain afterward expressed the idea that a 10 mil plastic, covered with earth might be adequate.

Chalpin, in discussing the DEQE proposal, said it was the same as had been done in southeastern Massachusetts to cover a huge pile of coal.

At this time, Chalpin said, the arsenic does not appear to be endangering the neighboring areas. Particularly, he said, the two wells that the City of Woburn has nearby have no arsenic in them. Those wells have been closed for over a year because of the discovery in them of trichloroethylene (TCE).

The latex cover proposed by DEQE according to Chalpin, will help to prevent the metals (arsenic and chromium) from being made soluble. He termed both pits as "potentially dangerous."

There are monitoring devices near the pits which, so far, have not revealed the presence of any arsenic in the air.

Chalpin told the committee he had found lead in the ground. The lead, he said, could have come from the emission of automobiles on nearby Route 93.

Peter McMahon was a ballot watcher

The writer of this story has long had a tale to tell, as a joke, on why the Irish people of Massachusetts became Democrats. Of course it is just a joke.

In the 1840s, Ireland, the country, long a land of turmoil, was suffering from a blight which affected the potato crop. Several things happened as a result, some of them not pleasing.

There was starvation in the land. Many of the Irish people, if they could get the money, emigrated to the New World.

The writer's story is that Paddy landed in South Boston just as the 1848 political scene began to get going. The Whigs and the Democrats were warming up for the state and presidential elections.

Paddy landed and walked down the street, with his clay TD pipe in his mouth, and a bag of potato peelings over his shoulder, ready to start farming in the new world, if he didn't find any of the gold with which the streets were supposed to be paved. He was stopped by Whig and Democratic workers. They each wanted to enroll him in their party.

Paddy took the pipe out of his mouth, and, from beneath his bushy eyebrows asked the question as to which side represented the government. The Democrat pointed at the Whig, and the Whig pointed at himself. The government, Paddy was told, was Whig.

"Thin," said Paddy, "I'll be a Democrat, because I'm agin the government."

That of course has no basis in the real reason that many of the Democrats are of Irish extraction, in Massachusetts.

Peter McMahon of Wilmington was a Democrat. He was, for many years, one of three Democrats who could be counted upon to attend the town meetings and other meetings having to do with the government of Wilmington.

James E. Kelley was another. Jimmy was the brother of Susan McEnroe, the lady who operated the boarding house in North Wilmington which acquired the name of The Shamrock. Annie McEnroe, Peter's wife, was a niece of Jimmy.

Jimmy, by occupation was a Scrivener. That's an old Anglo Saxon word meaning one who writes, and it has a legal connotation of being a person who can prepare legal documents. His home still stands, beside the Baptist Church. It was on the site of an ancient Bond Bakery.

Jimmy became, in time, the town clerk, and a selectman of Wilmington. As such he could not really participate in the distinctly partison business of being a Ballot Counter.

The third Democrat was Dr. Daniel Buzzell. He had come down from Vermont, to practice in Wilmington.

The reason why Dr. Buzzell was a Democrat was not the same reason why many Irish were Democrats. His affiliation stretched back through the years, into the early history of the country.

Dr. Buzzell, like James Kelley, could not be a Ballot Counter. As a physician he was liable to be called out of the town meeting, because of the impending birth of a child, or because of an accident.

That left Peter McMahon, the third Democrat.

The laws of Massachusetts required that there be Ballot Watchers and Ballot Counters, in every election, and that there be at least one representative from each of the two major political parties - the Republicans, and the Democrats.

Peter McMahon lived only half a mile from the Town Hall. He was a naturally curious man, who attended all the town meetings and discussions.

And he was the only Democrat who was not tied down by other duties, and thus not able to watch the polls.

So Peter McMahon became the Ballot Watcher, and the Ballot Counter for the Democrats of Wilmington. He never thought of himself as Mr. Democrat, but in effect that was what he was.

It was sometime before the Spanish American War that Peter McMahon became a Ballot Watcher. The pay was $5 a year.

The pay may not sound big, but there was little to do. A Ballot Watcher worked during the annual town meeting, by sitting by the ballot box. Then, too, when there were state and national elections, the ballot watcher had a job.

Voting might start at 10 a.m. At noon everyone would leave the town hall, and go over to the Congregational Church, where the ladies had a lunch all prepared. At 1 p.m. it would be back to the town hall.

There would be one person in the town hall - the constable. He had the duty of watching the ballot box during the lunch hour, when no one was voting.

At 1 p.m. the election would resume. It would go on as the men discussed, and voted on, the articles in the warrant for the town meeting. There would sometimes, but not often, be 50 men.

About 4 p.m. the moderator would declare the balloting had come to an end. Peter and his Republican counterpart, and one more person, would then count the ballots and declare the vote.

It was easy work.

Some time just before World War I, when the town had a few more inhabitants, there were Registrars of Voters, as well as Ballot Counters. Peter became a Registrar, and somebody else became a Ballot Counter. He still had the job because he was a Democrat.

The Registrars were paid more, too. They got $10 a year.

News analysis

Sal Gallo - more than a number

Everyone knows strange things can happen around Halloween.

But probably no one in the gathering at the Dewing School in Tewksbury last Wednesday could avoid looking a bit surprised when, before their very eyes, the figure $26,930 changed into flesh and blood!

The scene was the resumption of the public hearings on the school committee's proposal to eliminate the positions of four systemwide curriculum coordinators at an annual "savings" of $104,653.

The flesh and blood took on the form of Health Coordinator Sal Gallo, whose present salary of $26,930 (indicated above) is included in the $104,653 savings.

Usually, when school committee members refer to the position of health coordinator it's in association with the $26,930 figure - how much could be saved if that figure was erased from the school budget books.

Although the work done by Mr. $26,930 was seldom or never discussed (in public) by the school committee members, the majority of them figured that work could be divided between the superintendent, asst. superintendents, principals, and asst. principals. And if they can't do Mr. $26,390's job, then they should be replaced, it was decided.

So you can imagine the surprise at the hearing last week when Mr. $26,930 was asked to testify, and . . .out popped Sal Gallo.

It was so startling that everyone woke up and took notice. For the past two hours they had been listening to Mrs. $26,646, the reading coordinator, elaborate with all the excitement of a computer printout, on her duties and qualifications.

Like a tragic hero in a Greek play, Sal fought against his perhaps inevitable fate - the loss of a position he has held for seven years. "This might be my last hurrah," he told the school committee.

At first, he fought with sound and fury, signifying his anger at having to fight to show the importance of his position when other budget areas have been left untouched by the lords of the school committee at this time.

"Why me?" he cried. "My feeling is, no one here even knows what I do."

Later, his anger gave way to pathos, as he reflected upon the good fight he has waged against the evils of drugs, sexual ignorance, and other health-related problems in the Tewksbury School Department.

He remembered, for instance, the time when he held a program on venereal disease, and over 100 students and parents came to hear him speak; and about the time a parent called him up to see if he could do something about her 10-year-old, who she just saw smoking marijuana in a local playground.

Little things, too, came floating back through his mind, like so many white clouds at a time when his future in Tewksbury looked so bleak and overcast.

He half - soliloquized about the time he took a mirror into the classroom of the severely retarded students, "so they could see what they look like so they will know how to take care of themselves."

But if Sal exhibited the tragic emotions of anger and pathos, he was also not without the transcendance of mind to view his fate in a more lighthearted manner.

Many a time during his hearing Sal evoked rounds of laughter from his captive audience by relating some of the more humorous aspects of his job as health coordinator.

From his testimony, the gathering could get a clear picture of him clunking from to school to school in his '72 Dodge, or of him painting his own health posters in his basement, like some inspired caveman tracing on the walls of his rocky dwelling.

He also said that his willingness to coordinate the Sex Education program "took the heat off of others."

And, in a mock tribute to his own abilities, he told his audience how, "Mr. Wynn (school superintendent) sometimes calls me in to be an advisor. Isn't that amazing?

After fretting and strutting, and sometimes chuckling, across the staged hearing, Sal exited, stage right, out the doors of the Dewing School.

It is up to the school committee to decide whether Sal (and the other three coordinators) will be retained as part of the cast of the school department, or whether, as Mr. $26,930, his days will indeed be numbered.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

The dark side of the Halloween celebration showed up last weekend, at Wilmington Plaza. Satanic forces entered the minds of some individuals. They doused a dog with gasoline and then set on fire.

The dog, in a panic, ran behind the stores, and there died. The look of agony was to be seen on his face.

I feel that such an act should not be repeated. I am enclosing $5, to be the starter for a fund to be paid for information leading to the arrest of the individual who did this. Possibly others can contribute to it as well.

Warren G. Newhouse

The Town Crier hereby starts a fund, and has contributed $5. Anyone wishing to contribute may do so, at the Town Crier office.

Dear Larz:

Recent statements of a West Street resident, reported in Oct. 29 Lowell Sun, before the Board of Selectmen of Wilmington to the effect that the South Wilmington Betterment Association inadequately represented residents of his part of West Street, and that he and his neighbors have been told nothing by the Town, State, or DPW about the plans as they progressed are not true.

The South Wilmington Betterment Association was formed early in 1978, and before its formal organization, frequent appeals were published in the Town Crier inviting all residents of Precinct 3 interested in the then developing plans of the DPW for improvement of Route 129, and its effect on residents of West Street and Precinct 3 residents invited to attend public meetings and exercise their rights to obtain information, have adequate input, and register objections. All meetings of the SWBA were duly advertised in the Town Crier, and all input from all interested parties was welcomed.

The DPW conducted several informational meetings and two public hearings, on relocation of Route 129, all advertised in the Lowell Sun and both local newspapers.

The complaintant was a card - carrying member of the SWBA, and he tore up his card at a meeting, and stomped out of the hall. At a later meeting, because of his complaints of non - representation, he was welcomed back, and elected to membership on the SWBA board of directors, which he accepted. After attending several board meetings, he ceased to participate in anything but relocation of West Street, and dropped out completely.

The SWBA has, since its inception been dedicated to representing all residents of Precinct 3 especially (that is south Wilmington) beginning with 129 relocation, but that issue is only one in which the SWBA is interested and involved: Pollution of Air and Water, Hazardous Waste Disposal, Traffic Control, Encroachment by industry on Residential areas, are all issues on which the association has taken a stand, and will continue to do so in the future as new issues affecting our well - being develop.

As in the past, all meetings of the South Wilmington Betterment Association welcome all interested residents of Precinct 3 to help solve our mutual problems.

A. Quandt, Pres.

Dear Larz:

I'm upset, angry - and terribly sad!! I'm writing this at 1 a.m., still thoroughly shaken by a so called Halloween prank.

To those cowards who threw the 10 pound rock through our picture window and kicked in our door: I understand from the police this isn't the first such "incident." I pray it will be the last! For minutes before, my daughter had been sleeping on the couch where the rock and glass landed. Just a little earlier, and you would have been up on a charge of murder.

I hope you all sleep well. I cannot!!

Sincerely,
Arlene Surprenant

Dear Larz:

I would like you to help me draw public attention to a grave situation.

In the October, 1980 Reader's Digest, is an article about Genocide, which is being commited right now in Laos.

I have ordered reprints and have been in contact with the magazine's office. They have agreed to forward my correspondence to the author of the article.

I hope everyone reading this letter will read the article and help me to create enough public interest and pressure so that the subject will attract the national media's attention.

Many people tried to bring attention to Hitler's atrocities and the slaughter in Cambodia. By the time enough publicity was mounted, it was too late to save millions of lives.

I fully realize that it is impossible to help all of the people all of the time, but it is not impossible to bring pressure on those involved.

Anyone interested in writing a letter or contacting Congressional members is urged to call me or write. My address and phone number is in the book.

Let's not turn our backs on this opportunity. It will soon be too late.

Respectfully,
Warren Newhouse

Dear Larz:

Something is very wrong in the Town of Wilmington when the Wilmington Housing Authority won't recognize Wilmington taxpayers, even after they have submitted letters in writing asking to be on the agenda. Yet they allow representatives of Berkshire Builders from New Hampshire to speak any time they want without submitting written communications in advance.

They also said that they didn't intent to recognize us in the future, because they think we've had enough time to speak in the past.

Well, we think when we've been allowed to ask all our questions and received satisfactory answers - that's when we will have had enough time to speak!!

I am sincerely disturbed at the lack of straight forward answers and the inconsiderate attitudes shown by the WHA.

Robin Theodos

Dear Larz:

I cannot understand the hassle and "parade" that went on at the Wilmington Housing Authority's meeting last week. The only thing I can figure out is that Mr. McMillan and Mr. Hooper staged the musical chairs situation so as not to have a full quorum. Why are they wasting our time with such foolishness?

I ask the Housing Authority, "Who is trying to pull the wool over who's eyes?" We, taxpayers are not fools - give us our right to vote on this important issue and don't say that it's not "binding!" Don't waste any of our time and money with more foolishness!!

I am thoroughly disgusted with the W.H.A. and when election time comes up, my vote (along with others) will go to anyone except those already in office!

Sincerely,
Stasia Georgelis

Dear Larz:

Last Monday night the Wilmington Housing Authority was again unable to reconsider rescinding Chapter 774 due to the fact that board member Lorraine Brozyna was at the Council on Aging meeting held at the same time.

Since the Wilmington Housing Authority and the Council on Aging both meet on Monday evenings, how can Mrs. Brozyna (a member of both boards) effectively do justice to either job since she can not be in two places at one time?

Wilmington crime watch

Do you want to keep your car? Because Massachusetts has the highest motor vehicle theft rate in the nation, you should take all precautions to protect a most valuable possession.

Here are a few facts for your consideration. The average value of a stolen car is $2400.00. The average value of theft of vehicle contents is $254.00. The average value of accessory items from an automobile is $139.00. Statewide annual losses of vehicles, accessories and contents approach the $100 million dollar figure. What is the value of losses recovered? About one half the amount taken, nearly $50 million dollars.

Here are some tips to help you keep your car:

- Take time to record your vehicle identification number and your registration number of a piece of paper and keep it in your possession.
- Install some kind of anti - theft device such as an ignition kill system. Engrave the car's serial number on parts of the car that can be removed.
- Take the standard door lock buttons off the car and install tapered buttons.
- When you park your car on the street or in a lot, turn the wheels in or out and remove the key from the ignition in order to lock the wheels. (this makes it tough to tow a car)
- Never tell a parking lot attendant how long you will be gone.
- Leave your house or trunk key with the ignition key. Remove all valuables from inside the car.
- Park your car in well lighted areas. Jot down your mileage when you park.

Remember - lock your car and pocket the keys!!!! Don't be a statistic.

Miceli says Rte. 129 is three years off

Rep. Jim Miceli last week told a study group that the earliest possible date for reconstruction of Route 129 is three years in the future. The study group involved representatives of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, Planning Board and Conservation Commission.

The long delay, Miceli said, was the reason he had consented at this time to the reconstruction of the Burlington Avenue bridge. The planking there was weak, and he feared a truck or a school bus might fall through some time this winter.

The present planning is for a full cloverleaf intersection at Route 93 and 129. The plans for the intersection are, he said, at this time in Washington being reviewed on the federal level. Their discussions of the proposed cloverleaf, at this time, involves the wetlands near Route 93.

There is an additional hold-up at the federal level, in that the feds feel the assessments on the property are too low. Four months ago a new crew was sent out, to raise the assessments.

Because of this and for other reasons the final public hearing, for Route 129, is probably more than a year away, Miceli said.

In addition to the planning for the cloverleaf at Route 93, there is planning for a new layout at the intersection of Main Street and Lowell Street. This new intersection will do away with the Shell gas station, Miceli said, because one way streets are being planned.

The former planning of a roadway through the Yentile farm has been completely written off. The saving of farmland, Miceli regards as an asset to the community.

The plans for the West Street intersection are at the Washington level, being reviewed by the feds. The state is no longer planning a new West Street on the northerly side of Lowell Street, according to Miceli, but such an intersection still shows on the plans in Washington.

The latest intersection plans for the Wilmington Square area are similar to those seen many times before, with a northbound highway crossing Church Street and Middlesex Avenue in the area of the Post Office. Kirk Street would have access to the new highway, instead of going directly off Main Street. The new railroad bridge, as shown before, would have a southbound Route 129 under the present hill in Wilmington Square.

Miceli said that eight homes and businesses would be affected by the relocation of Route 129. It was for this reason that the representatives of the three committees were meeting. One of those present was Kevin Hurley, planner for the Wilmington Planning Board. The town engineer was also present.

Lou Maglio of the Planning Board, and Hurley both commented favorably. "The time to start the planning is now" said Maglio. "If we miss the boat we are going to be out."

Hurley said it was an opportunity to make Wilmington Square an asset to the community, "instead of what it is now." "We are talking about new concepts."

School Committee looks at discipline policy

by Elaine DePasquale

School discipline was uppermost in the minds of the Wilmington School Committee members at their regular meeting last week.

Mindful of accusations of lax discipline made public at the recently concluded dismissal hearing of former high school teacher Warren Atkinson, the School Committee made plans to begin reviewing disciplinary procedures informally with high school principals and assistant principals.

Atkinson was discharged two weeks ago for insubordination and conduct unbecoming a teacher following a May, 1980, incident during which he allegedly humiliated a student in front of a class. Atkinson claimed he received no support in disciplining students from the high school administration.

At issue last week were school department policies regarding suspension of students and possession of dangerous weapons. However, School Committeeman John Brooks suggested that a total review of discipline in secondary schools was needed.

"We have just gone through a trauma and a lot of accusations were aired," said Brooks. High school administrators, he said, should have the opportunity to respond to those they were unable to at "the so-called trial."

"The appropriate place to begin is to sit down informally with school administrators and give them some sort of feedback from the committee," said Superintendent of Schools Dr. Walter Pierce.

School Committee Member Linda McMenimen, whose thoughts on school suspension began the discussion of discipline, said she believed the high school principals should look into an in-house suspension program, which would separate suspended students from the rest of the school population, but provide them with assignments to complete.

"Giving them three days off is like giving them a vacation," she said.

McMenimen agreed to go along with Brooks' motion for a total discipline review, but commented that such a course would probably take longer than the review of an in-house suspension program.

"Three days away from school is not the answer," agreed School Committee member Philip Fenton. He pointed out that suspensions have been on the rise. Last year, he said, there were 250 suspensions at the high school, while the two months of school so far this year had resulted in 179 suspensions.

To School Committee Chairman Lester White, however, an increased number of suspensions is the natural result of the tighter high school discipline that has been the committee's aim for some time.

"One of the things we have been saying for several years is that we want to have sterner discipline in the school system," he said. "And why don't we want suspensions to rise?" Perhaps the administrators are doing their jobs better this year."

White suggested that a good first step would be to examine present discipline policies to "see how well they are being administered before we start doing anything different." "Are they being fairly, evenly and completely administered across the board?" he asked, "or do faculty and administrators feel they have the right to decide what policies will be enforced and what will not?"

"As you sit here circling the wagons, you have to remember that we had an in-school suspension program and the School Committee threw it out," Pierce cautioned.

Wilmington Teachers' Association President Georgia Dadoly told the Committee that her organization had just discussed the matter of increased suspensions which she attributed to the success of a new policy for dealing with class cutting.

"Your concerns are ours as well," she assured the committee.

The discussion with high school administrators has been scheduled for a portion of the School Committee's next regular meeting at 7:30 on November 12. Later meetings, as yet unscheduled, will continue the discussion with junior high and elementary school principals.

Tabled by the School Committee last week was discussion on a new policy regarding the possession of dangerous weapons by students in school. The policy, drafted by a subcommittee which included Fenton and School Committeeman James Demos, recommended that students found with a weapon would have it confiscated and that it would be returned only to his parents, or turned over to the police if the suspicion of illegality were present. Weapons were defined as guns, knives, clubs, sharp instruments, heavy pipes, weighted hand devices or "similar objects for which no known educational use is clearly established."

Committee members objected to the draft policy on the grounds that it wasn't firm enough.

"I find it unacceptable to return a weapon even to a parent. It should go to the police," commented Brooks.

McMenimen, too, said she believed the policy needed reworking. The School Committee agreed to submit its suggestions to the subcommittee regarding possible changes to be made in the draft policy.

Also rejected by the board was a motion by Fenton to compile a unified handbook which would specify a code of behavior for both students and faculty system-wide.

Fenton claimed a unified handbook would allow regulations to be "administered to all, fairly and equally" and would equalize what he termed "nine little fiefdoms" in the public school system.

"We have one school system and the rules should be administered to all fairly and equally," said Fenton.

Taking issue with him were Pierce and West Intermediate School Principal William Fay. Pierce pointed out that a committee of school principals was already studying the issue and had submitted a handbook of student rules and regulations to the central office. "Because of the nature of the schools, you will have some discrepancies," said Pierce.

To Fenton, however, the issue of identical rules across the system remained an important one. "What if I have a kid going to the North and one going to the West at the same time?" he asked.

"You might as well say we should have the same set of rules throughout the United States as to say rules at the two junior highs in Wilmington should be the same," countered Fay. "They are two different buildings with two different personalities. I don't want some other principal establishing rules for my building."

Fay said he especially did not want to compromise on the issue of discipline if, for example, he were forced to compromise with another administrator "who may be super-liberal."

White cut off debate with a terse "Let's vote on it."

The motion lost 2-2.

'Anything Goes' this weekend

Suffering from the post - summer blahs? Looking for something exciting to do?

Then give yourself a big dose of cheer this Friday or Saturday evening at 8 p.m. by attending the Tewksbury Teen Theatre Workshop's performance of Cole Porter's musical, "Anything Goes" at the Tewksbury High School.

Tickets are $4 at the door or $3.50 if purchased in advance (call Norm DeMarias at 851-7174).

Proceeds will go toward the Theatre Workshop's high school scholarship fund, to which the group has contributed over $8,000 over the past 10 years.

Starring in the play will be Tewksbury residents Steven Hampe (as Billy) and Denise Ryan (as Reno). Norm DeMarais is the director.

The show will include such delightful Cole Porter tunes as "Blow Gabriel, Blow," "Friendship," "It's Delovely," "I Get a Kick Out of You," "You're the Top," "All Through the Night," and the title song, "Anything Goes."

The story is about the "Love Boat" - like situations that arise during a luxury liner voyage from New York to England. It featured Ethel Merman when it first played on Broadway in 1934.

Others participating in the show are Susan Arruba, musical director - conductor; Jeannine Miceli, choreographer; Carol Prasad, choral director and piano accompaniest; Bob Knapp, Patti Hanlon, Leslie Gonzales, and Bill Brown.

Birthdays

Astonishing as it may seem, a most reliable source said this week that Mark Barry of West Street, Wilmington will be 12 years old on November 5.

The same source indicated that Mark's kid brother Scott Barry will face a birthday cake glowing with seven candles on November 8.

Other area localites celebrating birthdays on November 8 include Tewksbury residents Randy Marks of Walnut Road who will be celebrating for the 12th time; Kenny Smith of Kittredge Avenue who will be 11; Scott Brann of Collidge Road who will make it all the way to 10 years old on November 8 and Wilmington resident Charlie Kelley of Clark Street.

Susan Valletta of Lexington Street, Wilmington will become a teenager on November 9 and will share greetings with Linda Roth of Church Street, Wilmington and Tewksbury residents Hazel Huggin of Champion Street, Mary McCullin of Forest Street; Kelly Doherty of Kendall Road and Christine MacIntire of Lowe Street, both of whom will be celebrating for the 12th time on November 9.

Debra Sousa of Oakwood Road, Wilmington will be serenaded by friends and relatives for the 14th time on November 10.

A set of Tewksbury twins, Daniel and Meredith Rice of Barbara D Lane will share birthday greetings with their father, Robert on November 11. Daniel and Meredith will be celebrating for the eighth time, but their father isn't saying how many times he's observed the day before.

Others claiming a Veterans' Day birthday include Peg Laval of Marjorie Road, Wilmington; Sherri Cushing of Washington Avenue who will be 14 on Veterans' Day; Robbie Curtis of Andover Street, Wilmington; Gerald Pupa of Eames Street and Marine Lance Corporal Frank Downs of Ayotte Street, now serving at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Karen Lee Crochetiere of Cardigan Road, Tewksbury will blow out the candles for the 10th time on November 12 and will share greetings with James Savlen of Rounsevell Road, Tewksbury who will be turning 15; William Wayman of Lawrence Street, Wilmington; Kathleen Durost of Shawsheen Avenue; Shawn Cushing of Washington Avenue who will be 15 and Sam Jacobus of Linda Road.

Golden Ager

It looks as though the only member of Wilmington's Golden Age Club on the current birthday list is Nellie Thompson of Deming Way who will be a year wiser on November 11.

Anniversaries

Nick and Louise DeFelice of Commonwealth Avenue, Wilmington will observe their 45th wedding anniversary on November 14 and will share greetings with Betty and Ray Spahl of Draper Drive.

William and Doris Russell of Wildwood Street, Wilmington will celebrate their 44th anniversary on November 10 and will share their special day with a couple of relative beginners -

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carta of Pine Avenue, Wilmington will dance the Anniversary Waltz for the 24th time on November 10.

Leaving town

Mr. and Mrs. "Willie" Aylsworth of Pinewood Road, Wilmington recently returned from a trip to Newfoundland. They have sold their home here and will be leaving soon to take up residence in Los Alamos, New Mexico.

New phone books

Delivery of some 111,000 new Lowell telephone directories began November 4. Area New England Telephone manager Jeannette Field said delivery is expected to be completed by November 21.

New England Telephone annually distributes over 10 million copies of 98 different directories which include more than 3 million listings on some 6 billion pages.

The first telephone directory appeared in 1878 as a sheet of paper listing 50 customers. No telephone numbers were used - callers simply told the operator the name of the party to contact.

Back from Alaska

When Dave Boeri writes a book, he doesn't simply research information - he lives it.

The Wilmington High School graduate, a resident of Lloyd Road has recently returned from Alaska where he has been living for some time, gathering material for his next book which will deal with life among the Eskimos.

Dave's first book, "Tell it Goodbye Kiddo," an excellently done story of the fishing industry was written only after he had actually worked as a member of New England's fishing industry.

Dave's articles have appeared in various well-known publications other than his own, and those who have read his work will be anxiously waiting the arrival of his new book to which is is currently devoting all his energies.

They swap tall tales at the coffee shop

By three o'clock in the afternoon, business is slow in Winston's Coffee Shop. The afternoon sun reaches in through the window, shining in the eyes of the few customers having a late lunch or an afternoon cup of coffee. It is time for the daily meeting of the "over the hill gang."

The question of which hill they are over has never been answered, but the term usually refers to age. The youngest member of the gang is no less than a half - century old, and the oldest just passed another milestone.

Eddie Sargent observed his birthday on Monday, for which he received a card from President Carter.

Eddie will admit to 80 summers, but some people who have seen the official records wonder if there might have been a year without a summer, one that he forgot to count. The record book says that Eddie was born on Nov. 3, 1899. Fit and trim, he could pass for a man of 60.

"He's starting to count backward now, "said Steve Winston.

If there is a ruse to Eddie's claim to only 80 summers, it is just part of the game that is the favorite sport of the over the hill gang. The men are well - practiced in whopper swappers.

To say that the men are liars would not be correct. Any one of them can be counted on to tell the truth in a serious situation. But for someone to believe every story that is told over afternoon coffee would be very niave.

The game plan is for one of the men to tell a whopper, and see if the others believe it. A victory is scored when one of the men comes back a day or two later protesting that something he had been told wasn't true.

Chet Spinney is considered to be the champion whopper swapper of the group. Not long ago, he was claiming to have picked up a radio transmission from Eastern Air Lines on his new hearing aid.

Not to be outdone, Ron Kennedy said the reason he wears two hearing aids is that one is for A.M., the other for F.M.

If Spinney is the champion whopper swopper, Sargent is the favorite fall guy. He has a well - earned reputation for honesty, and that gets in the way in a game of tall tales.

Very little of the conversation, though, falls into the "whopper" category. The men have to tell enough truth to be credible.

When they're not stretching facts, the men in the "over the hill gang" might be talking politics or swapping stories of long ago. On Monday afternoon, Sargent was talking about his father driving around in 1912, fetching voters to cast their ballots for Teddy Roosevelt on the Bull Moose ticket.

Card from Carter

Ed Sargent's birthday card was a hot item for the men in the "over the hill gang." Sargent turned 81 on Monday, and received a card from President Jimmy Carter. (left to right) Sargent, Ron Kennedy, Chet Spinney and Dice O'Neil meet at Winston's Coffee Shop every afternoon.

Miss Strand is a 1978 graduate of Wilmington High School and is presently employed by Computer Devices, Inc, in Burlington.

Mr. Cook is a 1972 graduate of Billerica Memorial High School and is employed by J. R. Sousa and Sons, Inc., in Danvers.

A May 3, 1981 wedding is planned.

Melrose Savings Bank eyeing merger

The Melrose Savings Bank is considering a merger with the Atlantic Savings Bank of Chelsea.

The reasons for consolidation include an expanded market area for the two banks, along with an increased profit potential which will be available to the combined institutions. The expanded market area will provide a good distribution of financial services in an area from Chelsea to Wilmington. The Melrose Savings Bank has a branch in Wilmington.

Atlantic Savings Bank presently has assets totalling $175 million, and Melrose Savings $140 million.

In keeping with a recent trend for savings banks to use more generic names, the merged bank will operate under the name of Atlantic Savings Bank. "We believe," a spokseman said, "that the name Atlantic Savings Bank will provide a more meaningful association for our customers who will be located in many towns and cities throughout Eastern Middlesex and Suffolk counties."

The proposal provides that John H. Wood, president of Melrose Savings Bank, will become president and chief executive officer; and William C. Andrew, president of Atlantic Savings Bank, will become chairman of the board of trustees of the combined institutions. Melrose Savings Bank is presently a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and the proposal provides that the Atlantic Savings Bank will become a member of the FDIC, providing federal deposit insurance for the consolidated bank.

"In view of the federal regulatory approvals required for such a merger," the spokesman said, "a longer period of time will be required before the merger can be consummated." Both banks will first submit the plan of consolidation to their trustees, who will vote to authorize the application for merger. After regulatory approval has been received, the final plan must be submitted to the Board of Corporators of both institutions for final approval before the consolidation is completed.

Cub Pack 136 meets

October 13 was the fall's first meeting for Cub Scout Pack 136 at American Legion Hall. Parents saw many new boys taken in as Cubs and Webelos and many awards were presented.

Kevin Bowlby, Scott Tuxbury, Matthew Flewelling, Joey Mahoney, Jeff Foresta, Michael Calder, Peter D'Amore, Eric Lavely, John Nocera, Joseph Piazza, Christian Clark, Chris Cassinello, Roger Trow, and P.J. Coates were inducted as Cubs.

A Bob cat badge was awarded to Kevin Bowlby and the Bear badge went to Allan Tate and Steven Mann.

Service stars were given to Robbie Curtis for two years and J.R. Suprenant, Phil Fenton Jr., Dave Filier and Eddie Cuoco for one year.

Leader service stars went to Pat Fenton, seven years; Beverly Sullivan, six years; Jim Tate, two years; Harriet Lombard, two years; and Phil Fenton, two years.

Fifteen boys were graduated into Webelos and received their scarf slide and colors. They included John Carter, Mike Lombard, Allan Tate, Steven Mann, Roger Trow, David Morse, Jason Britt, Dwayne and Dwight Hill, David Hale, Jim Hayes, Jeff Boutwell, David Patterson, Sean Leonard and Dewey Johnson.

Special recognition was given to Philip Fenton, Mike Lombard, David Steadman, Danny Savoie, Richard DiPerri, Sean Mahoney, David Filier and Robie Curtis for marching in Wilmington's 250th parade. Expo prizes were given out to the boys who participated.

Finally the meeting was drawn to a close by an Arrow of Light ceremony for Eddie Cuoco. It is a great honor for a Webelo Scout and was very impressive. Eddie then was graduated to Scouting.

The next meeting of Pack 136 will be held November 10 at 7 p.m.

Trip to Edaville R.R.

The Wilmington Recreation Dept. is planning a trip to see the Christmas lights at the Edaville Railroad.

The trip to Edaville will be on Sat., Dec. 6, leaving the high school parking lot at 3 p.m. The price is $7 for adults, $5 for children under 12. Children under 2 are free. The price includes bus fare, tickets on a train ride and admission to the museum.

Only 40 seats are available. Sign-up is at the Recreation Dept. office in the Whitefield annex, 658-6512.

Each year Edaville becomes New England's largest Christmas attraction, with more than 100,000 lights in a spectacular panaorma in the main attraction area. More than 20 bright Christmas displays can be seen along the five and a half mile train ride.

Wilmington police news

The Wilmington Police log for the week ending November 4 indicates a busy seven days for the department, especially over Halloween. Twenty-seven burglar alarms were sounded, all of them false; three accidents were investigated and five larcenies were reported.

Eleven criminal arrests were made along with nine protective custody detentions; cruisers responded to 14 disturbance calls, most of them teenage problems. Over 20 incidents of vandalism and malicious damage to property were reported, such reports especially numerous on Halloween. Many incidents of eggs being thrown at houses and cars were reported and several homes were sprayed with paint; three house breaks were investigated along with four attempted breaks.

One car was stolen and one other car was recovered. Residents reported 16 incidents of suspicious activity; traffic complaints numbered three for the week and three people were reported missing. All three were returned to their homes.

Tip of the week: Most readers are unaware of the legal process when someone is arrested, and the following procedure in court. After arrest, most people are entitled to be bailed from jail. A bail commissioner is the only person who can accept bail and release a prisoner for a later date in court.

The police cannot release anyone on bail, although a juvenile may be released, in most cases to a parent, to appear later in court. Most of the time an individual is released on personal recognisance, which means that no actual money is put up as bail, but in effect a contract is signed guaranteeing the the court appearance. However, there is a fee which the commissioner charges the arrestee for his release. That fee is not refundable and may vary with the time of day and the number of charges. More on this next week.

Arrests

Tuesday evening Officers Vassallo and Rooney arrested Blaise F. Wentzell of Swain Road, Wilmington charging him with operating under the influence of alcohol; speeding and failing to have a license on his person.

James F. LaFleur of Dorothy Avenue, Wilmington was arrested by Officer Alfred Venuti on Wednesday morning. LaFleur was charged with operating a motor vehicle after revocation of his driver's license.

Several charges were placed against John D. Hamilton of Main Street, Woburn when he was arrested Thursday morning by Officer Venuti. Hamilton was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol, failing to keep to the right of the road and speeding. He was additionally charged with possession of Class D drug (marijuana), driving an unregistered, uninsured vehicle and other motor vehicle offenses. Hamilton appeared in Woburn District Court later Thursday and his case was continued to November 4.

MacDonald Road resident Edward Marden was arrested Friday night by Chief Stewart who charged him with operating under the influence of alcohol.

Two local men were arrested Saturday morning by Sgt. Rooney and Officer Pat King. John MacFeeley of Burnap Street was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol and was additionally charged with malicious damage to property - the police cruiser. Donald Ahern of Boutwell Street was charged with possession of Class D substance (marijuana).

Sunday morning Officer Mark Jepson arrested John Robinson of Arnold Terrace, Burlington and charged him with operating under the influence of alcohol; operating after revocation of his license and other motor vehicle offenses.

James Winnette of Catherine Avenue, Wilmington was arrested last week by Sgt. James Rooney who charged him with operating under the influence.

Two female juveniles were arrested Sunday evening for breaking into a new home on Brattle Street. Officers Lynch, Rooney and McKenna made the arrests and charged both girls with breaking and entering and malicious damage to real property.

A Reading man was injured while driving his dirt bike down the railroad tracks from Middlesex Avenue to Salem Street. He struck a cable that blocks access to the railroad property. He was taken to the Regional Health Center by fire department ambulance. Officer Jim Cuoco investigated.

Wilmington senior topics

Fair Saturday

The Senior Citizens' Fair will be held at the Drop-in Center this Saturday. The seniors have been working very hard putting the fair together and many articles will be offered for sale and on chances. These will include knitted articles of all kinds, crocheted afghan, handmade quilts, plants and pasteries, to name just a few. The fair will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. with the public not only invited, but urged to attend.

Successful Halloween party

Nearly 200 seniors took part in the Seniors' Halloween party last Thursday night. Through the generous donation of the Knights of Columbus the party was held in their hall. Left-over food was distributed among shut-in members of the senior community.

Whist party Monday

The first whist party of November will be held at the Drop-in Center on Monday afternoon beginning at 1:30. Seniors are advised to arrive early.

Legal advisor

The legal advisor will be at the Drop-in Center on Wednesday starting at 11 a.m. He will arrive on appointment. Call on Tuesday to make an appointment.

Food stamps

The Welfare Department feels that many seniors living on limited incomes may be qualified for food stamps. The Council on Aging reaches a sizeable number of seniors, but realizes there are some whom they have not been able to contact. Seniors or friends of seniors knowing anyone who may qualify for food stamps is urged to call 658-2211 for more information.

Cut a cord

The Department of the Environment has introduced a "cut-a-cord" program in the forest and state parks. This program will run through November 23 on Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for citizens over 62 years of age. There is a $4.00 permit fee. Only one cord of wood per family may be cut and it must be taken away the day it is cut. The park in this area is the Harold Parker Forest in North Andover. Call 686-3391 for information.

Thanks, Bill

A thank you to Bill Belbin, chairman of the Council on Aging for insulating and paneling the front walls of the Drop-in Center and for weatherstripping the door. Thanks also to Sam Bertwell for repairing the door closer. Volunteer acts such as these contributed by Bill and Sam help alleviate the waste of fuel at the Drop-in Center.

Checking and oiling of all circulators prior to the heating season in the 40 units and the Community Building.

Service Company is to supply all labor necessary to keep heating systems running properly, such as circulators, thermostats, air vents, and related plumbing.

The request is made that bids for Fuel Oil and Maintenance be quoted separately. Fuel price quotes are to be based on the lowest Boston Tank Car Price as shown in the New York Journal of Commerce under Daily Petroleum Prices as published on November 14, 1980. However, only bids that are submitted by firms that are willing to deliver fuel and service equipment will be considered.

The closing deadline for all bids is November 17, 1980, at 8:00 P.M., at which time they will be opened and publicly read. All bids submitted should be enclosed in an envelope with the words "SEALED BID" clearly marked on the outside of the envelope.

The Wilmington Housing Authority reserves the right to review all bids for thirty days to confirm and investigate the qualifications of bidders, and further reserves the right to reject any and all bids as it deems to be in its best interests.

Lawrence is for real

Lancers bullish on Redmen

If there is a more impressive high school football team in Massachusetts, and a more impressive fullback than Dave Speller, then Tewksbury has yet to see that team and that running back.

Speller (84 points) led a Lawrence third quarter stampede, when the Lancers scored their first touchdown to snap a 0-0 halftime stalemate enroute to a 15-6 domination of the Redmen before an overflow Lancer throng that came to Tewksbury's Walter Doucette Memorial Field Saturday to see their team play its biggest game in over 20 years.

The impressive win left the Lancers unbeaten (7-0) and atop the Merrimack Valley Conference East - the so-called "weaker" of the two divisions, while the Redmen dropped to 5-2 in the MVC West with their second home loss of the season.

Coach Lefty Aylward's Redmen now wind up their 1980 season with games against Dracut, Greater Lowell and Wilmington. This Saturday's battle with the surprising Middies will be Tewksbury's final home game this season.

The Redmen were just no match for an excellent Lawrence offensive line that enabled the bull-like Speller to bang away at the middle for 115 yards on nine carries, 50 of which came on a second quarter ramble that set the tone for a third stanza that saw the visitors control the football for all but three plays.

Lawrence took the second half kickoff after a give and take first half offensively and marched the ball down the Redmen throats via a 13 play, 71 yard drive capped when quarterback Scott Lonardo fired an eight yard TD strike to receiver Dave Giribaldi who had beaten defensive back Frank Fay to the corner of the endzone.

You could point to several factors which led to Lawrence's dominance of a game that could lead to a Division II Super Bowl.

One - the Tewksbury defense has lived and died by the big turnover ever since Aylward took over as coach. Saturday, the defense didn't come up with one turnover against a Lancer team that has turned rock solid when it comes to discipline under first year head coach Steve Perocchi.

Two - a case of dropsies. At least eight Vecchi passes were dropped, and although an excuse could be made due to a strong wind, all of those balls were catchable. If those passes are latched onto, then Tewksbury could finesse its way back into a game against a team that takes the bull by the horns and rams you in the gut with not just a super fullback, but a pair of fine halfbacks (Kevin Molloy, Steve Zahn) as well.

Three - a play that swung the game decidely in Lawrence's direction. With 2:10 remaining in the third quarter, after the Lancer 71 yard second half drive to take a 7-0 lead, the Redmen went for the first down on fourth an inches at their own 29. Vecchi called an audible at the line of scrimmage that wasn't heard by his teammates, and when the Tewksbury quarterback took a quick drop setting up for a look-in pass, he was immediately sacked by a hard charging Lancer defense.

Lawrence then took advantage of the botched Tewksbury gamble, covering 24 yards before Speller bulled his way in for a two yard TD. The Lancers then faked the PAT try and holder Kevin Molloy rolled out and fired a two point conversion pass to a wide open Jim Muldoon.

The score forced the Redmen into scoring not only two touchdowns, but a pair of two point conversions if they held any hopes of a fourth quarter comeback.

It was Lawrence's total domination of the third quarter that boosted them over the "Big Game" hump. The Redmen had thought that if they took the lead early in the game, that the Lancers, inexperienced at playing catch-up, would stagger and fold.

It was the Redmen who staggered in the second half, as Vecchi (six of 21, 52 yards) was pressured by a strong Lancer pass rush led by Ricky Speller.

The Redmen offense didn't untrack itself until it was much too late in the game, as Vecchi found Dan Munroe with a 19 yard TD pass with 1:11 left to play. Tewksbury's lone score was set up by a long run by senior halfback Tom Horgan, who continually stuck his head into a herd of burly Lancers.

Both teams had several scoring opportunities fall short in the first half, with the Lancers even attempting a 45 yard Paul Bell field goal in the second quarter that was batted down by the stiff wind.

Speller's 50 yard run fueled another

The Redmen dropped several passes Saturday, and junior halfback Frank Fay (21) fell victim to the dropped ball plague.

Fourth straight Middie win

Dracut blanks slumping Wildcats

The red-hot Middies handed the slumping Wildcats their second straight shutout loss in MVC football action Saturday, as Mike L'Hussier swept seven yards for a touchdown in the opening minute of the fourth quarter in a 7-0 Dracut victory.

The win was the fourth straight for the defending MVC champs, who improved their slate to 5-1-1 and moved into the top 10 of the Division II football ratings.

The shutout was the second straight for the Middies and their fourth on the season. Dracut's first defense has allowed just one touchdown thus far in 1980.

The Middies put the wraps on Wilmington quarterback Glen Sargent, and that coupled with the fine punting of Glen Enger kept the Wildcats attack bottled up for most of the afternoon.

Again a fourth quarter score spoiled Wilmington's shot at a victory, as the locals have allowed final quarter

Elks Hoop Shoot champs

Champions were crowned recently in the Tewksbury portion of the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks Lodge No. 2070 Hoop Shoot held at the Tewksbury High School gym.

In the girls division, Stephanie Vultaggio, Valerie Flaherty and Joanne McNamara took their respective titles, while Kevin Polleck, Keith Sullivan and Tim Boudreau won their boys age brackets.

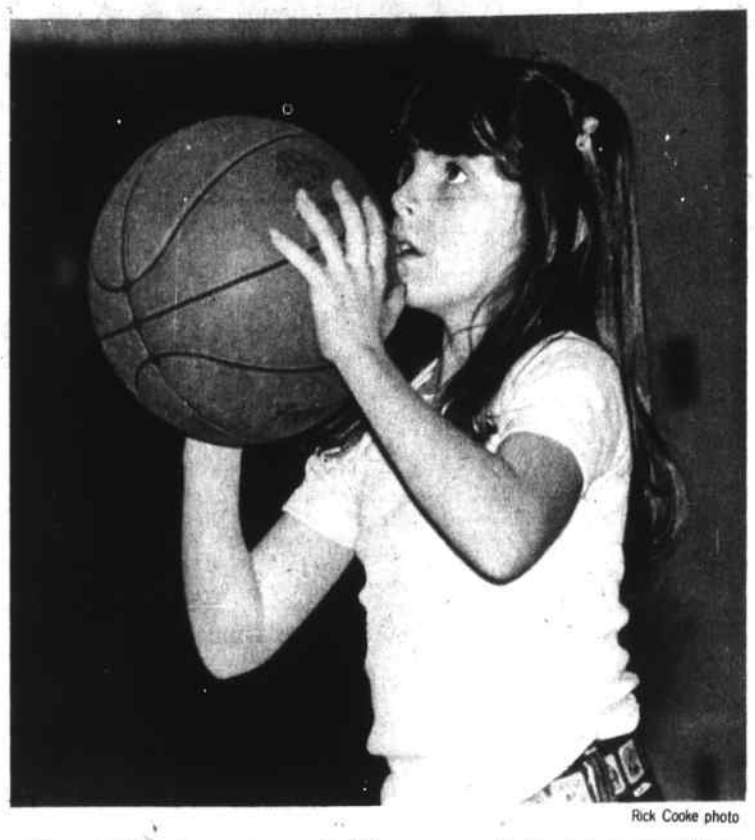

The six champs now advance to compete in the District championships to be held at Woburn High School January 10.

The girls took 25 foul shots, with the highest percentage winning. Val Flaherty was the winner in the 12-13 year old division with 16 of 25 shots. Karen Hennessy finished a strong second, connecting on 12 of 25.

In the 10-11 year old competition, Stephanie Vultaggio and Patti Coviello each hit 15 of 25 foul shots, forcing an overtime that Stephanie won by making three of five shots.

Joanne McNamara lived up to the high standards set by her brother John, a former Tewksbury High School standout, when she captured the eight-nine year old division with 16 of 25 from the line, including nine straight during one stretch. Melanie Danner came home in second place in the eight-nine year old division.

The winners at the Woburn District championships will advance to the finals at the Market Square Arena in Indianapolis later in 1981.

B squad routs East Boston, 27-0

The Wilmington Charger A and B squads hosted East Boston at the West Intermediate School field, while the C team traveled to Swampscott in Pop Warner Football action Sunday.

The B's scored early and often as they amassed over 300 yards on the ground enroute to a 27-0 victory over East Boston.

Jonathan Hensey and John McLaughlin shared the scoring honors with two touchdowns apiece. In the first quarter, Hensey raced 79 yards for a score, then added the extra point with an off tackle slant, while McLaughlin scampered 53 yards off tackle to run the score to 13-0.

Hensey bolted 70 yards through the line for the third TD of the game late in the second quarter, while McLaughlin added the final tally with a 68 yard sweep to paydirt. The extra points were successful, with a slant in pass to Russ Lydon, and Chris Athanasia sweeping the right side for the score.

The B's played tight defense throughout the game, while the offensive line opened big holes for their running backs on the way to a convincing victory.

East Boston tops A's 13-6

The East Boston A's battled back in the second half from a 6-0 deficit to top Wilmington 13-6.

The Chargers got on the scoreboard early, set up by a 35 yard option pass play from Tony Cutone to Mike Ingersoll. Wilmington scored moments later when Ingersoll carried over from the four yard line. The extra point attempt failed.

East Boston broke the ice midway through the third quarter on a 12 yard slant-in pass for the score, followed by a fourth quarter six yard off-tackle scamper. The extra point attempt was good for the final tally of the afternoon.

C's blanked, 14-0

The C's could not get their offense in gear, as they dropped a 14-0 decision to Swampscott.

Unable to capitalize on two Swampscott fumbles, the home team rebounded in the second quarter to score on a six yard pass play over the middle. A dive play for the extra point gave Swampscott a 7-0 halftime lead. Swampscott scored late in the final stanza to close out the scoring for the day.

The Charger A and B squads host Reading at the West Intermediate School Field, while the C's travel to Everett Memorial Stadium to tackle the Everett C's next Sunday.

Lancer shot in the second quarter before the Tewksbury defense stiffened at the 12 yard line.

Before that Lancer thrust, Tewksbury had driven to the LHS 20 before a Vecchi pass fell incomplete on fourth and four. Another fine Redmen drive was short circuited when at the Lancer 29 a long Vecchi bomb to Fay was intercepted by Muldoon, who stepped in front of the Tewksbury receiver at the six yard line.

If Tewksbury had been able to convert on just one of those first half drives, it might have been a different story. Perhaps, if the Redmen did take that quick lead, they might have gotten that panic reaction out of Lawrence.

It never happened, and a Lawrence High football team that was once the whipping boy of the conference, did some fine tuned whipping of their own Saturday.

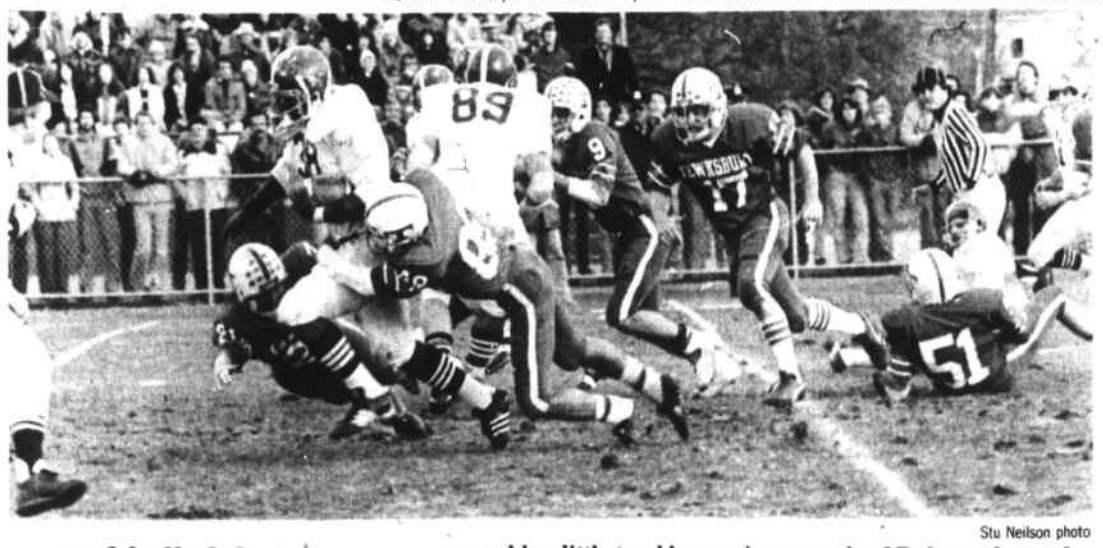

Extra points.....The Redmen defense did force Lancer quarterback Lonardo into throwing the ball more than he had all season, and he was more than up to the task, completing seven of 10 passes for 76 yards.

The final stats showed Lawrence with 261 total yards and 10 first downs to Tewksbury's 227 and nine first downs. In the first half the visitors banged away for 135 total yards and six first downs, while the Redmen had seven firsts over 131 yards.

The Redmen ground game was stiffled in the second half, and that coupled with the many dropped passes all but shutdown the offense until Horgan's 51 yard run that set up the Munroe score.

Tewksbury was held to just 72 yards on the ground in the second half. Horgan finished with 94 yards for the game, while frustrated senior fullback Bob Byrd covered 51 yards on 12 carries. The team's other speedback, Frank Fay, was also held in check with just 23 yards on five lugs.

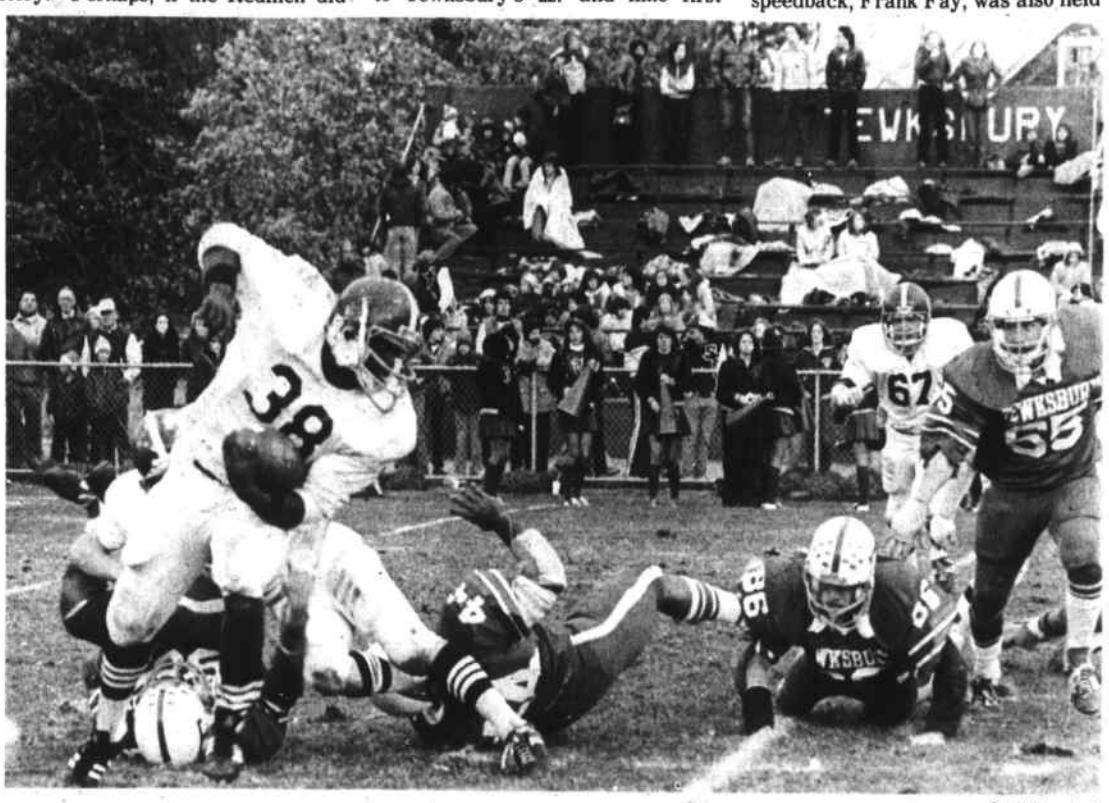

In last year's 16-0 loss to Lawrence, the Redmen were also plagued by several dropped passes. Lawrence head coach Steve Perocchi was an assistant under Ed Buckley when the Lancers won consecutive state championships in 1957-58. Perocchi replaced John Kelleher this season after a couple of campaigns as an assistant at Methuen High. - Cooke

TMHS volleyball

Tewksbury still has two shots at tourney

The Tewksbury High School volleyball team has just two more shots at qualifying for the second Eastern Mass Tourney in the school's history after Saturday night's 2-0 blanking at Billerica.

Coach Steve Catalano's Redmen dual Lowell (Nov. 5) and Andover (Nov. 6) on consecutive nights this week, and both teams have posed problems for Tewksbury this season.

Billerica, five time MVC champ, improved to 11-4, while Tewksbury dropped to 10-5 in the conference, 12-5 overall with Saturday's 16-14, 15-9 Indianvictory.

Tewksbury jumped out to a 14-7 lead in the first game, and had hopes of scoring a double victory over coach Lynn Hazel's Indians after having defeated them for the first time in five years earlier this season.

Billerica went to work avenging that earlier 15-9, 15-6 loss at Tewksbury, rebounding in that first game for nine straight points and the victory.

The second game was a bit easier for the home squad, as they rolled to a 15-9 win over stubborn Tewksbury.

Sheila Russell, who sat out the first game between the two teams with a neck injury, returned to help lead the Indians, while junior tri-captain Jerrie Bernier helped spark Tewksbury.

The Tewksbury junior varsity came from behind to edge Billerica 2-1, with 15-13 and 15-5 wins after dropping the first game 12-15. Heidi Kennedy played a super game for Tewksbury.

Miele, Farr pace local runners

Runners from Wilmington and Tewksbury fared well in Saturday's State Coaches Meet, with Bob Miele (Wilmington) and Phil Farr (Tewksbury) leading the way.

Miele topped the Wildcat pack, finishing 26th in 17:19 over the 3.5 mile course. Other Wildcat runners placing were Keith Ford (74), Jim Vachon (83); John Richburg (95); Sean O'Donaghue (126); Joe Deegan (140), Scott Braciska (141) and Mike Tilton (162).

In the girls race, Wilmington sophomore Lisa Desforge took 18th place in 13:10. Other Wildcat runners participating were Mary McNaughton, Laurie Buzzell, Cindy Runge, Peg Vachon, Janie Wolff, Diane Tobey and Heidi Malewicz.

Farr topped the Tewksbury boys runners in the race with his 29th place finish in the Senior Division I. Maria Santagate paced the Tewksbury girls with her 26th place finish in 21:25. Cathy Maillet was next at 22:01.

In Northern Area Meet action recently, Wildcat ace Carl Borgeson finished ninth with a fine time of 16:11. Other Wildcat finishers were Bob Miele (37th), Walter Daley (69), Mike Cassidy (68), Mike Stokes (97), Keith Ford (122) and Dave Gorski (123).

The WHS girls finished 11th among the 15 teams competing in Northern Area action, with Mary McNaughton heading the cast with her 24th place, 20:33 finish.

Also running well for the WHS girls were Lisa Desforge, Joan Lombardi, Linda Nistico, Susan Taylor, Patty Cassidy and Karen Smith.

Tom Springford topped the Tewksbury runners while Cathy Maillet was the girls leader in the Northern Area meet.

Wilmington Youth Hockey

Gillis blanks North Reading

Coach Fred Stone's Pee Wee B's picked up their first shut - out of the season by defeating North Reading 4-0 last week in Youth Hockey action.

Joey Costabile made it 1-0 at 5:56 of the first period before defenseman John Mytych fired a lamplighter home at the 52 second mark.

Assists went to John Mytych, Mark Marranzini and Joey Costabile.

Then Andy Aresco found his range twice, at 6:56 of the second period and 2:59 of the third. Both Marty Laquidara and Todd Boudreau assisted. Goalie John Gillis earned the shutout.

With Brian Gilson out sick, the other three defensemen, Eric Ouellette, Sean Marsh and John Mytych played outstanding in front of Gillis.

Wilmington II, coached by Paul Bjork, netted an early three goal lead in the first period and a half Sunday afternoon, at Janus Rink in Lowell, andWilmington I, coached by Joe McMahon staged a two goal onslaught of their own in a 3-2 Wilmington II victory.

The win for Wilmington II evens their record at 1-1. This follows an undermanned opening game 3-1 defeat at the hands of a fine Lowell team October 26 at Lowell. Wilmington I's record now drops to 0-2.

Wilmington II's scoring attack was paced by Chuck Stokes with a goal and an assist. Additional goals were scored by Jim Magliozzi and Mike Stuart with assists to Steve Lowry and Michaud.

The scrappy Wilmington II defense was led by Derek Sencebaugh, Rich Kurowski, Steve Lowry, Mike Wright and Sullivan.

Tewksbury Pop Warner

B' team pops Woburn, 18-6

The Tewksbury B team remained undefeated with a tough 18-6 win over the previously undefeated and unscored upon Woburn B team Sunday. The Redmen offense went to work early in the second quarter on a fumble recovery at midfield by Joe Evangelista. The Redmen then marched 50 yards on fine runs by Joe Vecchi and Buddy MacAllister, as they brought the ball to the three yard line, where Vecchi banged in for the score. Ken Coviello added two points via the kick to make it 8-0.

The Woburn offense came right back at Tewksbury, as they brought the ball down to the Redmen seven. There the Tewksbury defense put up an impressive goalline stand to stop the Tanner attack. Chris McHardy stopped the Woburn advance on a third down and one yard to go with a fine open field tackle.

Woburn didn't waste time in the second half, as in four plays they made the score 8-6 Tewksbury, as the Redmen blocked the PAT.

Tewksbury put together another long drive on the ensuing kickoff with fine runs from MacAllister and Coviello, but the drive was stopped cold on the two yard line thanks to a fumble.

On the Tanner's first play from scrimmage, Tommy Niles and Buddy MacAllister sacked the Woburn quarterback in the endzone for a safety to up the lead to 10-6 Tewksbury.

Tewksbury's offense went to work again with some hard running from Vecchi, MacAllister, Jeff Larsen and a key 15 yard sweep by Coviello to bring the ball to the goalline where Robbie Aylward sneaked in for the score. Coviello's PAT kick made the final score 18-6.

Defensive standouts for Tewksbury were Coviello, Jim and Joe Evangelista, Billy Ward and Jeff Larsen. Standouts on the blue defense were Scott Fay, Timmy Boudreau and Tommy Geraghty. The Tanner B team was the Middlesex League champion and the Tewksbury team was the Merrimack Valley champ.

A' squad falls, 20-0

The Redmen A squad could not get its offense untracked and dropped the senior tilt to Woburn 20-0. The Tanner A team was also undefeated and the Middlesex League champ.

Playing good defense for Tewksbury were Steve Norton and Shawn Doyle with assists from Steve Murphy.

Both the A and B teams play their last game of the season at home this weekend against Burlington at the new Ballou - DelRossi Field on Livingston Street. The B game starts at noon on Sunday, with the A game at 2 p.m. Both teams hope to see all area fans turn out to support them in this last game before the teams leave for the National Bowl in Winston - Salem, North Carolina.

Tewksbury wallops Framingham, 22-0

The Tewksbury C team Chiefs put on another impressive offensive show as they shutout the Bay State League Wolfpack 22-0 this past Sunday at Ballou - DelRossi Field.

Mike Goodine scored from six yards out in the first period and John DeVivo added the point for a 7-0 lead. Tewksbury's second TD came on a six yard run by DeVivo, and this time Goodine scored the point for a 14-0 halftime lead.

In the third frame the Chiefs added two points via a safety, as they sacked the Framingham quarterback in the endzone. The final Tewksbury score came in the fourth period, as DeVivo swept left end from 11 yards out for the 22-0 victory over their South Shore visitors.

Outstanding defensive players for the Chiefs were Mike Fitzpatrick, Brad Homola, Goodine and Brian Aylward.

The Chiefs take on the undefeated MVC C champs Dracut this Sunday morning at 10:30 at the Ballou - DelRossi Field. This game will gear up the Chiefs for their National Bowl tilt in North Carolina. All the coaches and players hope that the whole Tewksbury In - Town League and home town fans will turn out to cheer them on to victory.
